Photocopying of titles is strictly forbidden, except where permission has been granted by the publisher. Unauthorised copying of Larch Music titles or their reproduction by any means including electronically or the storage of music on CD Rom for cataloguing purposes is illegal and directly infringes copyright. This may lead to prosecution.

RETURNS

All music titles are NOT supplied on approval. If requested we can supply sample for your perusal, these may include a single part or one or two pages of a score. Larch Music will not accept any titles returned for credit or exchange unless supplied in error. Any such errors should be reported within 7 days of receipt of music.

This clause is in place to protect all, publishers, composers and arrangers most of all. Photocopiers are common place in most institutions today and the temptation to make copies is ever present. Remember, at the end of the day it you that loses out most of all. The publisher and composer & arranger are the ones that also lose out and will not be able to publish or write new music for you to play. Copyright law is in place until a composer or arranger has been dead for 70 years and their music is not public property until after this period.
